Lepel offers state of the art systems with offered the ultimate in reliability and performance as they are completely water-free and fan-free. Not only that but they integrate easily into a packaging line as they are shipped ready to roll up to the conveyor and begin sealing. Their new CS plus Jr. manual cap sealing system also has sealing heads that seal closures sizes from 5-58mm and 20-120mm making possible to use one machine for all of your sealing needs.

Want to get into heat induction lining but afraid to make the capital expenditure in advance of some serious testing? We don't blame you!

Use one of our machines to get comfortable with the process and prepare your integration strategy. Simply:

- ❖ Agree to reference us if you decide to buy a Lepel machine (no pressure)
- ❖ Agree not to use our machines for production but for testing
- ❖ Agree to cover round trip shipping of machine from our facility to yours
- ❖ Agree to cover the costs of any damages to our machine
- ❖ Agree to our reasonable rental rates of $125/week ($25/business day up to a 3 week max testing period per customer)
- ❖ If you choose to buy a Lepel we will refund you 50% of this fee

! Purchasing an induction requires much time and thought. It is important to test samples in advance of any major purchasing decisions to make sure that the machine and lining material selected is good for your desired application. While there are many lining materials available suitable for various purposes, if your application requires strict tolerances it is best to test and understand all options available before making your decision.
